DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 11/26/2008 has been entered.

Claims 6-8, 10, 28, 33-48, and 52-57 are pending in this action; all claims are treated on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 6-8, 10, 28, 33-48, and 52-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. This rejection is maintained for reasons of record.

1. The new claim limitations

The new claim limitations limit the method to polyurethane polymers or the swelling agents to particular solvents, or both. As previously discussed, the disclosure does not make clear which, if any, polymers can be gelled in such a fashion so taht the entire volume of solution and second liquid coalesce into a gel; that is, so that the resulting product has no discernable liquid phase and all of the second liquid is incorporated into the gel. There is nothing in the disclosure to suggest that the particular polymer/solvent combinations in the claims will do this.

2. Applicants' arguments

Applicant's arguments fail to comply with 37 CFR 1.111(b) because they amount to a general allegation that the claims define a patentable invention without specifically pointing out how the language of the claims overcomes the rejection.

Here, the evidence of record is strongly counter-predictive. As discussed in the previous office action, gelling processes do not have the feature of incorporating the entire volume of the polymer solution and second liquid in the gel. Furthermore, as previously discussed, there is only minimal guidance in the application. The specification is little more than an invitation to the artisan to begin experiments to determine what liquids will work for what polymers. While not dispositive, it is important that the specification does not teach even one example of the method that leads to gellation of the entire volume of the polymer solution and second liquid. The working examples merely note an increase in viscosity for the aromatic polyurethane in THF with nine appropriate second liquids are used. An increase in viscosity is not gel formation, so the specification does not teach that a gel actually forms by this method. And there is nothing in the disclosure to indicate that the entire volume of the second liquid and polymer solution are incorporated into any gel that may form.
